

ETOOTONIN'

2011.07.07

Becoming All for the Lord Today

XII / 116

From Graduate...

All for the Lord.com
GRAPHIC DESIGN
John 3:16

to Professional.

This issue is supposed to contain info about how I went from College Graduate to Graphic Design professional, but all that has happened so far is that I got a job delivering pizza. Today I earned a whopping $5.55/hr. I got $100 for designing a t-shirt for a friend, but that same friend, a lawyer, lost interest in my services after I refused to implement trademarked sports team logos into my designs for him. I thought I had my first professional, non-friend freelance gig lined up but it fell through.

This is a silhouette of my niece Amalia, who is languishing under the care of my unchurched brother. She will know a world of pain because he knows the world so well and cares so little for Jesus. She will have her every need met by the money he has, but she will not survive unharmed.

I am suffering my umpteenth depression and relationships are suffering. I am unsatisfied with life and the God who created me. I am disappointed that so many people insist it is up to me to somehow reap the blessings that He should be bestowing upon me. I am hosting a lasagna party for all my alcoholic neighbors this Sunday, if I can get up the motivation to make all the food. My car is being repaired tomorrow and I have $300 in my bank account and $10 in my wallet and only this stupid pizza delivery gig. This is my Etooin' report. It ain't so great.