Girls are freaking weird.

Girls are freaks!

You're a freak!

Frank Zappa is a freak!

I'm glad you are my friend.

I'm glad you are my freak.

H'all about the Children.   Oct. 31st, 2015

Oooh, I ate too much candy...

But what a fun Halloween!

Trick or treat.

Trick or treat.

And inside, a party...

My, what sharp teeth you have, Grandma!

On March 2, 2016, I was chosen to take part in an intensive, 35 hr/wk, 8 week Advanced CNC Training class. The training, worth $16,000, is free from a MassMEP grant. There is an intimate Job Fair for students and a job placement rate of 90%. This is in addition to two classes I've taken at Quinsigamond Community College: Solidworks and AutoCAD. Both were paid for by the Mass Rehab Coalition. Combined with my prior eleven year career in Mechanical Engineering, I expect my time as underemployed will be over. CNC stands for, "Computer Numericly Controlled," and refers to standard manufacturing lathes and milling machines. The class starts at 8:00 AM for two weeks and then goes to 6:00 AM for five weeks. I am hoping I can stay motivated by the end result to keep this kind of schedule.

Take 9   March 10 $^{1/2}$, 2016

Sometimes we need to do what we don't like in order to do something we like later...

I don't necessarily want to be a CNC operator, but I like the 90% placement rate.

Maybe I'll get a $20/hr job after class? And maybe I'll get off SSDI!

That would be pretty cool!!!

The ladies will love that!

Ramifications...   March 10 $^{2/3}$, 2016

I want a job, but then I'd have to pay off $10.5K in student loans...

That'll take forever.

And of course my income will be taxed. SSDI is not taxed.

Oh well. Staying at home is so boring: I need something to do...
